Erasmus+ Studierendenmobilität Auslandsstudium - internationale Erfahrungen sammeln

Studierende können mit Erasmus+ nach Abschluss des ersten Studienjahres an einer europäischen Hochschule in einem anderen Teilnehmerland studieren, um dort ihre sozialen und kulturellen Kompetenzen zu erweitern und ihre Berufsaussichten zu verbessern. Sie lernen dabei das akademische System einer ausländischen Hochschule ebenso kennen wie deren Lehr- und Lernmethode. Ein oder zwei Semester im europäischen Ausland studiert zu haben, bedeutet außerdem einen Pluspunkt für den persönlichen Lebenslauf und für die eigenen Chancen auf dem Arbeitsmarkt in Deutschland und Europa. Studierenden der Freien Universität Berlin stehen an mehr als 300 Partnerhochschulen in ca. 30 europäischen Ländern Erasmus-Plätze für ein Auslandsstudium zur Verfügung. Am Erasmus+ Programm beteiligen sich ausnahmslos alle Fachbereiche.

Erasmus-Studierende genießen folgende Vorteile

- Befreiung von Studiengebühren an der Gasthochschule
- Förderung auslandsbedingter Mehrkosten durch einen Mobilitätzuschuss oder eine Mobilitätspauschale für die Dauer des Auslandsstudiums

Recommendations for the application

- Find out whether the partner universities offered by your institute/department are suitable for your field of study.
- Check whether you meet the academic and language requirements of the partner universities (e.g. proof with the transcript of records that a certain number of ECTS have been completed in full at the FU).
- Find out about the semester dates of the partner universities (lecture start/end, exam start/end), as these often differ from those at the FU.
- Find out about the housing situation on site in the host country/host town.
- Prepare yourself linguistically for studying abroad in good time and make sure you have an up-to-date proof of language proficiency. There are not always (sufficient) courses offered in English, so knowledge of the national language (possibly regional language such as Catalan) is required.
- Take a look at the current course catalog of the partner universities to get an impression of the courses offered and the languages of instruction.
- If you have several subjects at the FU: Apply via the subject (the institute) that you would like to study mainly at the partner university. There is no guarantee that you will be able to study your all of your subject(s) at the host university.
- In your letter of motivation, please refer to the partner universities and make a reference to your current studies at the FU. Why are these universities interesting for studying abroad (course offerings, research focus)? Funding conditions

Completion of courses worth at least 15 ECTS per semester including participation in and passing the examinations of the partner university, all semester periods/blocks must be covered by courses.

Erasmus+ Financial Support

The Erasmus+ funding period is determined by us before the start of the study abroad and corresponds to the expected duration of study at the host university. The regular semester dates are used for the start date and end date (see MoveON Publisher).

- Introduction/welcome days, lecture period, regular examination period
- If the study period differs from the semester dates, e.g. because students are doing (research) internships, students must inform us by e-mail about the individually agreed period.
- If students take courses at UNIS instead of at the actual partner university in Norway, we need to be informed as early as possible. The Erasmus+ funding period then depends on the UNIS course periods.

Swiss European Mobility Programme / SEMP

Switzerland: financial support

SEMP students do not receive an Erasmus+ grant. Instead they can receive a financial grant from the Swiss government for their stay in Switzerland.

By applying for the exchange at the partner university, you are also applying for the grant.

However, your acceptance as an exchange student from the partner university is no guarantee that you will receive one.

The financial support is paid by the Swiss partner university. The amount of the grant is currently CHF 2,200 per semester (approx. 2,000 euros).

Tobias, Grenoble

„I'm just grateful for the cultural exchange, a wonderful time and the fact that I made friends for life.“

Martin, Turkey

„My personal experiences in both semesters far exceeded my expectations, they could not have been more positive.“

Thomas, Sweden

„In the end, that's the best thing: you go to a country to do Erasmus, but you come back with friends from all over the world.“
